Annual August Sale

High-Grade Wool Bed Blankets

(Manufacturers' Seconds)

IT is a sale of Fine, Fluffy Wool Blankets, practically perfect, at an average saving of a quarter to a third on regular prices. These Blankets are known to the trade as "seconds," that is, they are not absolutely perfect and up to the high standard set by manufacturers careful of their reputation. This lot comes from one of the leading manufacturers in the East, and the imperfections are very slight and less noticeable than ever.

There are about 300 pairs in the lot, in white, red, gray, and blue-and-white plaids, for single beds, double beds, three-quarter beds, twin beds, and cribs.

We offer them at a quarter to a third less than they would cost you if they were strictly perfect.

10-4 Blankets, $1.75 to $5.50 pair.

Regular prices, $3.50 to $7.50.

11-4 Blankets, $1.75 to $7.00 pair.

WOODWARD & LOTHROP.

MORNING CHIT-CHAT.

"TAKE the flower back, dear," said an unusually sweet voice behind me as I sat in the park the other afternoon. I looked around instinctively, and saw the lady of the sweet voice sitting on the settee next me with a baby in her arms and a boy of six or seven standing beside her. The baby had a big pink rose in her hand and the boy stood frowning at her.

"Take the rose back, dear," said the sweet voice again. "You know we never give things up when we can't give them up happily. You can't let little sister have the rose and be happy yourself, so you must take it back."

"But I don't want to take it back." "Yes, dear, you must. You know that's mother's rule. Mother wants you to be unselfish, but not unless you can be pleasant, too. People who are unselfish and frown all the time aren't nice. Mother doesn't want that kind of a boy," and the lady of the sweet voice twisted baby's unwilling fingers from the flower and gave it back to the boy.

Wasn't she a wonderful mother—to realize and try to teach her children the big, big lesson that frowning self-denial is of comparatively little value in this world—that it's self-denial plus a smile that counts.

I think she must have had some pretty bitter experiences with the wrong kind of self-denial to lay such stress on the right kind. Doubtless she had lived with one of those sour folk whose unselfishness is harder to get along with than cheery selfishness.

I once knew a woman who was a very bad case of this type. She considered herself a Christian, but her Christianity was only strong enough to attain the self-denial without ever reaching to the smile. She was forever denying herself and looking down about it. I happened to be at her home during a week when she had given up a long-desired trip, because both she and her sister couldn't go, and she felt her sister needed the change the more. Yes, of course, that was very good of her. But didn't it almost, if not quite, nullify that goodness that her sour looks and sighs and teary fits made the week a most unhappy one for the rest of the family?

There is a girl among my acquaintance who is perpetually perted and catered to and waited upon as an only child. The prettiest room in the house is hers. Her father and mother and aunt wait on her by inches. The best of everything is always saved for her. She is absolutely selfish, but she is happy. She may be less moral than the other woman, but I think I'd be just as ready to live with her.

And lest you think I myself am a bit unmoral in my preference for happy selfishness to unhappy self-sacrifice, let me refer you to a very great and most loved apostle of this doctrine of "self-denial plus a smile or not at all."

"Noble disappointment, noble self-denial are not to be admired, not even pardoned, if they bring bitterness. It is one thing to enter the kingdom of heaven maimed; another to maim yourself and stay without. Gentleness and cheerfulness, these come before all morality; they are the perfect duties."—Robert Louis Stevenson.

IN THE SOCIAL WORLD

Washington Pleased Over Return of Swansons.

POPULAR WHEN HERE BEFORE

Ambassador and Baroness Hengelmüller to Spend Fall Season at Lenox—Mrs. William F. Draper Takes a House in France—Reception for Rear Admiral Schroeder.

The return of Mrs. Claude A. Swanson, wife of the former governor of Virginia and Senator-elect, to official society is a matter of almost universal delight in Washington.

Mrs. Swanson was prominent in official society here for some years, while Mr. Swanson was Representative. She made friendships then that have lasted through many changes. Her beauty and vivacity made her a conspicuous figure in every gathering. She has returned almost every season for visits with old friends, Judge and Mrs. C. B. Howry and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur W. Dunn, particularly, and has usually attended at least one reception at the White House each year, thereby keeping up her acquaintance in Washington society.

The Ambassador from Austria-Hungary and Baroness Hengelmüller, who have spent the season at Bar Harbor since their return from Europe, will spend the fall season at Lenox, as is their custom.

Mrs. William F. Draper and Miss Margaret Preston Draper, widow and daughter of Gen. Draper, former Ambassador to Italy, have taken a home at Cannes, France, for the coming winter, and will not open their handsome house in this city during the coming season. Mrs. Draper and her daughter are spending the summer months at their estate, "Hopedale," Mass., and though still in mourning, Miss Draper has as guests several of her intimate friends from Washington, among them Miss Laura Merriam and Miss Mary McCawley. Mrs. Draper has long been dissatisfied with her residence here because of the adjoining apartment house, and it is believed she will not spend much time in that home in the future.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward McCawley left yesterday for Narragansett Pier, where they will spend the remainder of the summer. Miss Mary McCawley, who has been visiting her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Wolcott Tuckerman, at Hamilton, Mass., and Miss Draper, will join her parents at Narragansett. Mr. and Mrs. McCawley have spent the early summer months at Chevy Chase.

Mrs. Wesley Merritt, who has spent the past few weeks at Virginia Hot Springs, returned over to Natural Bridge, Va., last week and joined Gen. Merritt, who has been spending the season there.

Lieut. Sven Harold Pousselle, of the Swedish Legation, is spending the summer at Newport, where he is a guest at the Berkeley.

Mr. William C. Marrow, of this city, and a prominent member of the Washington colony at Newport, was host at a luncheon at the Casino yesterday, when he entertained a large company.

Former Senator and Mrs. Charles J. Faulkner, of Martinsburg, W. Va., who have been spending the season at Buckroe Beach, Va., have returned to their home. They took with them Senator Faulkner's daughter, Mrs. Stephen R. Snodgrass, of Martinsburg, W. Va.

Mrs. John R. Russell and Mrs. Kate Kneisley, of K street, have as their guests their sister, Mrs. R. Dallmeyer, and her daughter, Miss Mathilde, of Jefferson City, Mo., who are on their way to New York, Atlantic City, and Asbury Park, where they will remain for the rest of the season. Miss Dallmeyer was a former student of National Park Seminary, and has many friends in the Capital.

Miss Elaine Powell, who is the house guest of Mr. James P. Jeffries, at Warrenton, Va., was the guest of honor at a tea given by her hostess on Thursday.

Miss Maud Foster is the guest of Mrs. Elizabeth Gaines-Smith at her home, in Warrenton, Va., for several weeks.

Mrs. Charles Jesse is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Collins, at Bowling Green, Va.

Mrs. J. H. Clarke and the Misses Clarke are visiting the Hon. and Mrs. H. T. Garnett at Spy Hill, King George County, Va.

Mrs. Kidwell and her daughter, Miss Kidwell, left here yesterday to visit in Baltimore, Philadelphia, Mercersburg, N. J., and New York for several weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank D. Hodges are visiting Mr. and Mrs. George W. Palmer, of Spotsylvania, Va.

A reception for 700 guests is being planned at Newport, to be given in honor of Rear Admiral Seaton Schroeder and the officers of the Atlantic fleet on the afternoon of August 15, at the training station, by the officers of the Narragansett naval district. The fleet will go to Bar Harbor for the latter part of August, giving the guests there another impetus, somewhat like that of the visit of the President and his party last month.

Mrs. C. C. Wilson is spending the summer visiting relatives in her old home, Greenup, Ky.

Miss Myrtle Courts, of New Orleans, who is the guest of friends in this city, will probably leave shortly for New Albany, Ind., where she will visit her aunt, Mrs. William Dudley Holmes, at the latter's country seat, "The Knobs."

A. Platt Andrew, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, will go to Dublin, N. H., this week, where he will be the guest of Secretary and Mrs. MacVeagh, en route to his own summer home.

Mrs. Irene Emmert left yesterday for an extended trip through Maryland. Later in August she will occupy a cottage at Braddock Heights, Md., where she will be joined by her daughters, who are at present at Hagerstown, for the remainder of the season.

Col. F. Fuger, with Mrs. Fuger and their daughter, have gone to Asbury Park, where they will spend the month of August.

Newport society is looking forward with much interest to the cottillon to be given by Mrs. John R. Drexel, of Philadelphia,

Thursday evening at her villa. The dancing, which will follow a dinner party, will take place in the new ballroom. Newport's season will be known in the social history of the place as the greatest dancing season.

Miss Mary Minnis and her brother, Mr. Allen Clark Minnis, are spending the summer at Mountain Lake Park.

The Naval Attaché of the Austro-Hungarian Embassy and Baroness Preusschen, who have been spending the summer traveling in Europe, are now at their home in Vienna, and will not return to this city until the middle of November.

Miss Harriet Hanks is spending several weeks with her parents, Dr. and Mrs. George A. Hanks, at their home in Williamsburg, Va.

Prince Victor Napoleon and Princess Clementine of Belgium, according to the latest arrangements, will be married at Farnborough, Empress Eugénie's residence in England, next October. It will bring to an end one of the most romantic courtships of royal families.

Engineer Commissioner and Mrs. William V. Judson, after a visit in Lexington, Ky., Mrs. Judson's girlhood home, are spending several weeks among the lakes of Wisconsin.

Miss Nellie L. Harr, of Mount Pleasant, has gone to San Francisco, Cal. Later she will visit friends in Los Angeles, Williams, Ariz., and Denver.

Miss Grace Darling Chapline is the guest of her uncle and aunt, Pay Inspector James S. Phillips, U. S. N., and Mrs. Phillips, at Annapolis, Md.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Auerbach, of the Ashley, have gone to Ingleside, Md., where they will probably spend a week.

Rev. Jay Johnson Dimon, rector of St. Andrew's Church, will leave to-day for his vacation, spending a week at Atlantic City and the remaining time with his relatives, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mallory, at Port Chester, Long Island. Mr. Dimon has already endeared himself to his church people, and they will be glad to welcome him back in September, accompanied by his wife and children, in the rectory, at 1787 Corcoran street.

Miss Lenora Marie de Grange has gone to join Dr. and Mrs. T. J. Howerton in the mountains of North Carolina, where she will remain until September. She will return to accompany her mother to Atlantic City for an early autumn visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Gans are at the Marlborough-Blenheim Hotel at Atlantic City, where they expect to remain for a fortnight.

Dr. and Mrs. H. L. E. Johnson will be away from Washington until October. They are now visiting the North Carolina resorts and will later spend some time on the Atlantic coast.

Mrs. Samuel C. Lemly and daughter have gone to Belle Haven, Greenwich, Conn., to spend the month of August.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Robert Fague, of 3555 Tenth street northwest, will leave on Tuesday morning for Paconian Springs, Loudoun County, Va., to be gone several weeks, in the hope of recuperating Mr. Fague's health, he having been confined to the house for nearly three weeks.

CHINESE OFFICIALS COMING.

Experts Will Study Naval Affairs in This Country.

William J. Calhoun, American Minister to China, advised the State Department yesterday that a commission of prominent Chinese officials will leave Shanghai on August 24 to visit the United States for the purpose of studying naval affairs.

The commission will consist of Prince Tsai Hsun and Admiral Sah. The party will also include ten other attaches and secretaries.

Prince Tsai Hsun is a brother of the Prince Regent of China and an uncle of the infant Emperor. He is also a brother of Prince Tsai Tao, the head of the army reorganization board, who visited this country last October.

WOODMEN PLAN BENEFIT.

West End Camp Will Present Amateur Theatricals.

At the meeting of West End Camp, No. 1289, Modern Woodmen of America, held at Pythian Temple last night, a committee reported on arrangements for the benefit day at one of the theaters. The committee is composed of G. B. Haskie, Louis Hodge, and Dr. B. F. Gibbs.

It was voted to hold an open meeting on September 19, when the national lecturer, Mr. Thomas H. Duffy, will be present. Elaborate arrangements are being made to entertain Mr. Duffy, and work on the programme has already been started.

AT THE COLUMBIA LAST NIGHT.

"Love Watches."

The production at the Columbia Theatre last night was quite a midsummer theatrical event, for it not only marked the presentation of a comparatively modern comedy which has only just been released for stock purposes, but it signaled the advent of a new leading woman, Miss Blanche Hall, an actress who leaped into local popular favor and whose presence with the Columbia Players will undoubtedly do much to strengthen their work and enhance their pleasure-giving qualities.

There was an unusually large audience last night to see "Love Watches," the four-act comedy by R. De Fiers and G. Callavet, adapted from the French by Gladys Unger and made one of the most popular comedies of two seasons ago by the charming Billy Burke. Indeed, so much did the lightness and vivacity of the principal character in this comedy seem Miss Burke's own that any stock company might have doubted its ability to rush in where such an angel had fearfully trod, but the performance last night showed that intelligence, hard work, and daring will do much for the play was deftly and thoroughly drilled, and competently acted at every point.

"Love Watches" in the first place is a delightful, but almost unlistenable comedy. It is filled to the brim with epigram, axiom, clever repartee, and paradox that are so cleverly blended, with just a necessary touch of pathos or tenderness here and there, that it reminds one in turn of Pinero, Shaw, Wilde, and others of the later school of brilliant playwrighting. The theme—it is as old as the theatre itself, the loving wife, not content with present happiness, who must go raking in the ashes of her husband's past to find scraps of material enough to make her miserable and jealous; the old mistaken notion that two wrongs can make a right, and the running away of the wife so as to make her husband sorry and to "get even." In a thousand ways this theme has been presented to us before these clever French dramatists gave it a new form, or rather a new variation on its old form, so that it came to us with a freshness and dauntiness that seemed to defy the traditions that clung to it and to be all new.

Much, of course, of the Gallic salt was toned down in the translation, and doubtless the comedy was much broader and had a wider—if less pleasant—field in the original. But as it was brought over first and as it was presented so admirably last night, there is not a suggestion that should shock the most puritanical mind; it is all sheer good-natured fun with, underneath, for those who cared to understand, a wholesome lesson and a sterling moral.

Interest in the performance last night centered, of course, in the work of Miss Blanche Hall. She had a tremendous task. In the first place, it must be something of an ordeal for any actress to follow Billy Burke in a play that so well-known an actress has made her own. In the second place, the part is an unusually long one, and must be a trying one for an actress to use her debut with an old-established company before audiences that are new to her. But Miss Hall acquitted herself nobly. Her first appearance was the signal for applause that must have heartened her up and made her feel that she was welcome.

Very pretty, of graceful figure and charmingly modulated voice, Miss Hall does not look, from the front, unlike Miss Burke. She has a personality of striking magnetism; plays with verve and enthusiasm; is at times pert, pleading, saucy, and tender; but at all times sincere and genuine. Two or three places in the play give her opportunity to call on the resources of her art, and in one of these in particular, the scene with Ernest where she is supposed to have just a sip or two too much champagne, she played splendidly, and gave a striking hint of the forces she has in reserve. At times, too, both in voice and gesture—especially where the pathetic note was called for—she reminded us of Miss Effie Shannon, who is at least a clever technician. In short, Miss Hall gave a beautiful performance of a difficult role. She won lots of genuine and hearty applause and quite captivated her audience.

Two other new members made their appearance last night, Miss Dolly Varden and Miss Nina Melville, two pretty girls, who are cast for minor parts, but who made favorable impression and will probably prove valuable additions to the company.

The play was admirably cast throughout. Mr. Paul McAllister as Andre was strikingly good, though perhaps just a trifle less of the college spirit would have become a French nobleman better. But this lack of repose was noticeable only in the earlier scenes. In his scenes with Miss Hall he was very good, especially just after the honeymoon, where the wife, very much in love still, keeps on finding excuses to kiss him.

Mr. Walter Wilson gave a striking character impersonation as the Abbe Merlin. Mr. Forrester as M. Cartaret was good, as was Mr. Butterfield as Ernest Augarde. He was very much at his best in the tenderly pathetic little scene where he displayed the love letters he had never received, and confessed afterward to Jacqueline that they were all rejections—that he had never made a conquest in his life. Miss Emily Melville has another of those roles she plays so well. Miss Florence Huntington played the ungrateful part of Lucie with exactly the right tone and tempo, and Miss Phyllis Sherwood, always delightfully genuine, was charming and real as Charlotte. In short, in a long cast, with a number of difficult roles, all were played well, so that the production as a whole will rank with any that the Columbia Players have produced this season.

"Love Watches" will be the bill all the week, with a matinee on Thursday.

HERBERT FULLER.

Famous "Judas" of Oberammergau.

In McClure's Magazine, Louise Parks Richards, in an article on Oberammergau, tells an anecdote about the "Judas" of 1910.

"He is now sixty-nine years old, but does not look, feel, or act his age. On account of his years, however, he had hardly expected to be chosen again; but his remarkable impersonation of the betrayer decided the committee that none other than the pale-faced, Johann Zwinc, should fill the role. As Judas, his whole personality becomes that of the betrayer. An American woman once said to me: 'I wouldn't meet that man for anything! I don't ever want to see him again. That he is a Judas I am perfectly sure. It is all too real!'

"Yet this imitation Judas is one of the simplest, most ingenious creatures I have ever known. As a young man he has filled the role of John, the beloved disciple."

"In my heart I am not a Judas," he said to me, in the simplicity of perfect confidence."

GO TO FOREST GLEN

Endeavorers Hold a Midsummer Outing.

SPREAD LUNCH ON THE LAWN

Hold Meeting Afterward in Seminary Chapel, Where Enthusiastic Singing and Speeches Are Heard. Trip Is Made in Special Open Cars. Cheers Greet President Gates.

That hot weather and religion sometimes mix was the verdict of those who viewed the crowd, mainly of young people, piling into three special cars of the large, open type in G street, near the Treasury, at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Every member of the party wore a ribbon badge showing the words "District of Columbia Christian Endeavor Union," and it was learned that they were bound for Forest Glen, Md., for the annual August outing of that organization. The crowd was an enthusiastic one, and before the city limits were reached the occupants of the cars began to sing, and all the familiar Christian Endeavor hymns were heard, as well as the new District convention songs.

Eat Lunch on Lawn.

Reaching Forest Glen at 6:30, the crowd was equally enthusiastic over the contents of the lunch baskets and boxes which had been already on the ground amid the beautiful surroundings of the Forest Glen Seminary. Enthusiasm was carried into the meeting in the seminary chapel in the later evening, where President Gates, ever a live wire, introduced the speakers and directed the business of the meeting.

Rev. M. G. Leaman conducted the devotional service. Miss Blanche Dew and W. E. Braithwaite sang a duet, and the latter led the songs, in which all participated.

Cheers greeted President Gates' announcement that a chorus of 60 Washington voices would be heard at the International Christian Endeavor convention at Atlantic City next July, and 900 other Endeavorers would not be left behind.

One-minute reports from the Pen Mar Christian Endeavor assembly were given by seven Endeavorers.

R. L. Holmes described the daily programme of the assembly.

Miss Alice Rideout told of the good fellowship of the convention.

W. E. Braithwaite described the recreation features provided at Pen Mar. Miss Virginia Raymond told of the mission study classes.

Miss Agnes Suman gave some incidents of the excursion to the resort.

E. E. Oney spoke of the sunrise Bible study classes.

A. W. Starratt told of the personal work conferences.

Plans being made for the fall campaign with Interstate Christian Endeavor Field Secretary Karl Lehmann, were outlined by Vice President D. C. Davis.

The meeting closed with an address by F. M. Bradley, who spoke in an optimistic vein of the future of the Christian Endeavor movement.

Smart "Made" Veils.

The ultra smart "made" veils of the season are the black nets with square woven meshes and the bowknots embroidered on the borders and the black or white scalloped edges.

These are worn in a variety of ways according to the fancy of the individual wearer. In case the embroidered effect of the widely bordered mesh or the all-over lace does not become the features, the figures of the pattern are kept away from the face by putting the lace border at the top of the hat and drawing the plain part taut beneath the chin.

The more graceful way is to roll the straight side over the brim and let the veil fall loosely from it, allowing the handsome border to touch the edges of the shoulders and the two embroidered ends to join at the back.

A club has been formed in New Jersey for the purpose of creating and disseminating happiness. It isn't so theoretical as it sounds, for the founder and members have evolved a practical, matter-of-fact way of going about the business of making happiness, and have proved by actual experiments that it can be successfully done.

It all came about through a bishop's son trying to do something in response to the sorrowful appeals for advice and cheer received by his father. It seems to him, as he pondered the matter, that the world was in need of more happiness, so he started to see if he could not furnish it in some way. When he went to work he had one member of the club besides himself. To-day there are 5,000 of them, happy as larks and enthusiastically trying to make others happy. The club formed in New Jersey is an offshoot from the parent club.

After studying the matter, the bishop's son decided that happiness is both a physical and psychological
